RESEARCH PROPOSAL

The guiding principle for a good research proposal is that you must have a serious question in mind that is worthy of careful, thorough research. That is, you must be able to state a proposition (or a series of related propositions) which is worthy of detailed research and analysis.

The proposal should be written in English and include:

- A clear statement of the aims of the research and why it is a worthy and/or interesting topic.
- An outline of the research background of the topic, giving an overview of some current findings in the area, with references. From this background material it should be clear to a reader what the research problem is, and what theory, questions (hypotheses), or phenomena you wish to investigate.
- The methods you intend to apply to the research questions. For example, how you will collect your data, who might be the appropriate respondents, whether you will use an established data base, case studies, experimental methods, questionnaires, etc. It should be clear to a reader the methodology to be used, its source, and its appropriateness for the purpose of investigation.
- A list of works cited in your proposal and references (APA Style). It is likely that, in the process of conducting your research, details of the outline will be adjusted. That is, the statement of your research topic may be refined.
